Workshop brief:

Built heritage forms a vital part of every society, providing a sense of identity. It is one of our most important cultural assets. Lack of enforcing the existing conservation laws has resulted in disappearance of these cultural assets at an alarming rate. The use of documentation therefore provides a very important tool in preserving information and creating a sense of ownership. As documentation of Built Heritage is gaining importance, the workshop will enable the faculty to guide the students in a more informed manner, analysing the results of documentation and look beyond.

Workshop objectives:

Concept of heritage - heritage at risk - campaigns, listing, action plans for protecting heritage
Introduction of documentation as a tool for conservation
Procedures and techniques for documentation of built heritage
Documentation and reconstruction of intangible heritage
Insight into heritage management / economics
Exposure to the process of heritage listing
