Presents National Online Faculty Development Program on

Architectural Design Brief – A Preamble to Design Studio and its Evolution

An Architectural Design Brief is no different from any regular brief rather it stays as a prologue to a design studio as they aim to provide the essential details and requirements to the student.

Design Brief in general known as Program, can be more detailed or it can be short and limited as an author decides. The more detailed the design brief is, the clearer are the directions and approach to the same but it can sometimes hinder and restrict the thoughts.

It is important to remember that the Design Brief should evolve over the studio period and it is not a static document that is drafted in the beginning of the session.
